SUBJECT: Cla Civilian Specialist Reperve

l. (Mjective:

To establish a restily available pool of trained civilian apecialists whose skills would be required by the Agency in the event of war or general emergency.

2. CHICLE AND POLICE CHICANCE

Origin: The need for a Civilian Reserve Program to provide qualified personnel assuredly available to the Agency in event of a wartime expansion has long been recognized. In February 1956. the Office of Defence Mebilipation invited the agency to establish a unit of the Kational Defense Executive Esserve composed of senior executives which had been authorized by Executive Order 10660. dated 16 February 1956. A study was conducted at that time by the Office of Personnel with the aid of a task force on which there were representatives of the Office of General Counsel, Office of Personnel, Office of Training, Office of Communications, Office of Security, and Office of the Deputy Mirestor (Intelligence). The conclusion was reached that CIA had a greater need based on description requirements for a specialist reserve composed of technical personnel such as communication and medical technicians. paychologists, investigators, interrogation specialists, and so on, then it did for an executive reserve at a higher echelon. The task force further occoluded that establishment of a Civilian Specialist Secores was foreible using the authority vested in the Director by Public Law 110. The Office of Communications on 6 Jame 1956 and the Office of Training on 27 June 1956 presented staff studies urgently resembending initiation of such a program.

b. There Proposals The proposal was originated in Beadquarters as a result of anticipated needs resulting from war planning and emergency studies.

J. SITUATION:

At the 12nd meeting of the Career Commil held on 1) September 1956, a staff study, "CIA Specialist Reserve Frogram" was presented together with a proposed Appointment Instrument and a proposed CIA Regulation. Although the Council approved in principle the establishment of a Civilian Specialist Reserve, it recommended that a pilot project be developed for submission to the Project Keview Committee in lieu of establishing the Reserve by Agency regulation as was originally planned.

A. PHOPOSALA

By use of the authority vested in the Director of Central Intelligence by Public law 110, to establish in CIA by means of a plict program, a Specialist Seserve composed of civilians whose skills and qualifications would be essential to the Agency in time of war.

5. WELL COLLINIA

Sub-Processia or Taska: An initial authorisation of 250 spaces is requested for the Civilian Specialist Reserve although it is not anticipated that more than 50 eraces will be obligated in the first year of the program. Spaces would be allocated by the Director of Personnel distributed as to unsber, type, and grade by units to these operating components of the Agency that had requested the establishment of a wait of the Reserve in support of their mission in wartine. The Director of Ferromel would approve such request for the establishment of a unit. Mexical cons of personnel could be substitted by name to the Director of Personnel against these allocations, who would then be responsible for the recruiting, appointing, and applicating of martidates thus named; the sporting of additional potential members of the Reserve and forwarding their names with qualifidailule to componente having leserve write for their concurrence as to appointment; the calling of reservists to training duty. and in event of pational emergency, to full duty with the agency. Reserviate who are security and medically cleared would receive an appointment certificate for an indefinite paried after accepting the provisions contained in the Agency's Specialist Mesorva Adressed (Attackment 1). Almointment criteria. empenation benefits, responsibilities, and reasons for termination of appointment would be specified in these agreements (Attachment 2). In addition, a Farmanal Action, 57-50, would be executed (Attachment)). It is planned to execute reservists twice to Handquarters during the initial year of membership in the Specialist Reserve; at the time of appointment for a period of three days to complete entrance procedures, crientation, and security indoctrination, and a second time for annual training.

6. SECURITY:

- a. Cover: Although in most cases sover would not be a requisite, there may be some instances in which normal employment of the remerviate could be exploited for cover possibilities.
- b. Encular sublity Reservists would be knowledgeable of their consection with CIA and in all likelihood, many of their friends and business associates would become witting of this connection.
- c. Specitional Security: Operational security would be protected by making the training progree a formal one. In those instances where on-the-job training was required, this would be given only in salested places under exceptly controlled somittions.
- d. Aides been public and Congressional relations risks may be involved in the beginning of this program since the more fact that the CIA is recruiting a reserve is open to a variety of interpretations by those having some kneeledge of its mission. Furthermore, the matter of calling up the reserve in a period of tension or crisis would be a delicate one that might have undesirable reportunations. There is also a risk involved to the cover of the training astabilishments utilized tring to the increased numbers who would be receiving training at these locations. These risks can be utsimized by careful pre-selection of candidates, discrete recruiting, and thereogh security inductions.
- e. Ferencel Disposals in view of the fact that the reservist is not dependent upon the agency for livelihood or career, termination of relationships where necessary can be accomplished readily without complications.
- i. Planeter Flams Each reservist would be informed as to place of reporting in event of national emergency and disruption of facilities.

7. COURDIEATION:

- 4. Felation to Other Projects: So relation to other projects as such. Agency reserve activities will be fully soordinated so that there is no deplication.
- b. Simiffernce within over-all Program in Freat This program would be coordinated very closely with the Agency's military reserve program through administrative arrangements already in being between the Agency and the Department of Defense.
- pursues in which units might be established, five offices are firefly involved in servicing the program; the Office of Ferecasel, Office of Training, Office of Security, Comptroller, and the Medical Staff. Each has a specific function to perform. Securer, for the purposes of control and in consequence with CIA "Termonnal Mobilisation Finnaing," the Director of Ferecasel would accomplish the required coordination including the assignment of symbols specialist reservists to established made on the basis of detailed supposer requirements. The Office of Ferecasel would administer a budget for the direct cost of the program.

E. CURTICL:

- 4. Mainto of all communications between reservists and the operating components concerned sould be channeled through the Office of Furscanel which would maintain the correspondence files.

- b. Considerates There are no considerate with relation to this proposal.
- c. Effectiveness Project is not yet operative, therefore, no analysis of effectiveness is possible.
- d. Applicated Results: It is expected that the program will give the Agency sources of skilled manyower which are not presently available to it and reduce the dependency on other agencies, particularly the military, in the emergency situations.

SUBJECT: CLA Civilian Specialist Reserve

It would provide replacements for those headquarters Staff
Personnel who might be mested immediately in everyone locations.
A Specialist Reserve would have additional value as a source of prospects for personnel employment to replace attritional locate in peacetime.

- n. Evaluation: The effectiveness of the proposed project can be measured in terms of the Agency's ability to recruit qualified personnel to meet identified requirements. Evaluation them becomes a matter of reviewing the state of readiness of the camerve, which can be done in sembestion with annual terms of training duty.
- f. Policy descripted There is no present legislative intention to broke spen any civilian on obligation to serve the igency specifically in event of war. The Office of Defence Robilization has indicated that efficial recognition of the Agency program can be given in the broad field of manpower priorition. The policy question, therefore, is whether or not the igency mante to embark on a program for an unknown number of years without, in the final analysis, having firm control over the individual at the time when much needed.
- g. Congress He action with respect to the Congress is contemplated.
- h. Bairs Agency Action: Said advice and assistance will be sought from the Office of Defense Sabilization and Civil Service Consission as is pecessary to obtain recognition for the Agency program in the Government's emergency mangement planning.
- 1. Proprietary Companion: Not applicable.
- j. Special Considerations: Set applicable.
- k. Liquidation If unsuccessful, the Civilian Specialist Reserve could be liquidated by terminating all appointments.
